Eighteen bases on balls-eix each by Bur rell, Newmeyer and Blackburn-and ten helding errors, all made by the Pueblo team. were the features of yesterday's contest at Vinton Street park Omaha's player nelded without fault, backing up the er ratio work of their pitchers in superb style Though the game as a whole was a rich piece of comedy, there was a touch of tragedy at the beginning and another near th end. In the first instance Billy Hulen, the gracious, gentlemanly manager of the Pueblos, succumbed to a terrific blow received aquare on the right check by a pitched ball. Hulen was the second man at He strode up to the plate with high spirits, bound that he and all of his coworkers would redeem themselves from the poor start they made in the opening game. Poor fellow! The first ball Harry Burrell fired toward him went wide the intended plate and crashed into Hulen's cheek with a force that sent him sprawling. He was assisted to the bench and came near losing onsciousness. The ball had cut an ugly gash just in front of his right ear, from which blood flowed coplously. Tender ministrations were given him by Dr. Hanchett and the ball players, but he was unable to continue in the game, Reitz taking his place GAMES OF THE NATIONAL LEAGUE. ar short and Graham filling in at second After this severe setback it was little wonder that the visitors lost heart and played like a lot of clodhoppers, for the very vertebra of the Pueblo team was removed when Billy Hulen had to take the bench. Captain Jack O'Connell, the man by whom the champions and all of the fans swear with hearty good will, was plso the victim of a painful injury. In the eighth inning Dalrymple had been passed down to first by Newmeyer, "Dat" was indulging in his kittenish antics about the base when Newmeyer sought to catch him napping. He shot out his south-paw and the ball took a peculiar twist, catching Captain Jack's right hand in such a manner as to break the middle finger at the first joint. The flesh and nail were separated and the crimson started in a stream. Again were the services of a physician necessary and Captain Jack had McGin'ty, p. 0 0 0 2 0 Breit's n. p. 0 0 0 to surrender his place at the initial bag to Rebsamen, while Egan followed "Reb" in Brooklyn

Owing to the local popularity of Michael Crowe and the splendid record of Coleman it is believed in local sporting circles that their match will be one of the best wrestling exhibitions ever witnessed on a mat in Omaha.
